

7 Retirement & Savings Mistakes Many People Don't Realize They're Making

A Simple Educational Guide to Help You Better Understand Important Retirement & Savings Decisions

Loretta Stewart

Life & Retirement Advisor

Prosperity Life & Financial Solutions

www.prosperitylfs.com

Introduction

Retirement planning can feel overwhelming. Many people work hard for decades, contribute to retirement accounts, save consistently, and still aren't fully aware of some of the financial strategies and opportunities available to them. This guide was created to help you better understand several common retirement and savings decisions that may impact your future income, financial security, and peace of mind.

1. Keeping Too Much Money in Low-Interest Savings Accounts

Many people leave large amounts of money sitting in traditional savings accounts or CDs earning very little interest. While safety and liquidity are important, inflation can slowly reduce purchasing power over time.

2. Forgetting About Old Retirement Accounts

It's common for people to leave behind old 401(k)s or retirement accounts from previous employers. Reviewing old accounts periodically may help improve organization and simplify planning.

3. Not Understanding All Available Retirement Options

As retirement approaches, priorities often change. Some people become more focused on protecting principal, reducing market risk, and creating future income opportunities.

4. Waiting Too Long to Create an Income Plan

Retirement is not only about saving money — eventually it becomes about income. Planning ahead may help reduce uncertainty later in retirement.

5. Overlooking Tax Considerations

Taxes can play a major role in retirement planning. Understanding potential tax implications before making major financial decisions may help avoid unnecessary surprises.

6. Not Reviewing Beneficiaries Regularly

Beneficiary designations are often overlooked. Periodically reviewing beneficiaries may help avoid complications later for loved ones.

7. Waiting Too Long to Ask Questions

One of the most common retirement mistakes people make is waiting too long to seek guidance or ask questions about available options.

Ready To Learn More?

If you would like help reviewing your retirement or savings options, schedule a free consultation.

Scan the QR code or visit:

www.prosperitylfs.com/book

Loretta Stewart
Life & Retirement Adviser

414-441-1177

loretta@prosperitylfs.com

www.prosperitylfs.com

